Soak the Poor, Says the Arkansas Gazette, But Let Property Tax Alone

Hugh B. Patterson, Jr., publisher of the Arkansas Gazette, heads an organization calling itself the United Committee for Better Schools; and last week this organization with the claimed support of the Arkansas Edusition Association and the Parent-Teacher Associations made on appeal to Governor Orval Faubus and the Arkansas legislature for more state aid to the public schools and presumably increased state taxes.

Patterson appeared before the lawmakers on Wednesday, and on Friday the Arkansas Gazette published an editorial which made this observation:

"But a familiar counter-argument is still offered and now provides the first line of defense against any increase in state taxes — that the answer to the school problem lies in equalization of local property assessments and an increase in yield from the property tax. Nobody denies that assessment reform is badly needed. But it must also be noted that most of those who are now calling for state action in this field didn't raise a finger to help put over an assessment reform constitutional amendment which was on the last ballot, with the result that an overwhelming majority of the people of Arkansas rejected that approach to the school problem. So this fair question is raised. Does anybody seriously believe that assessment reform can be effected in time to meet any part of the needs of the public schools during the next blennium?

Neither the Gazette nor the AEA nor the PTAs lifted a finger to help Amendment 43 on a state-wide

And if you underline one sentence of the Gazette's ditorial of last Friday — "most of those who are now calling for state action, etc." — you understand what the score is: The Gazette and the AEA and the PTA organizations weren't calling for property assessment reform last fall and they aren't calling for it now. Thus do they wash their hands of government and taxes at the local level — and concentrate entirely on the state.

That their decision was made mony months ago is obvious. First, there was this complete silence of theirs on Amendment 43 last fall; and now an avalanche of sublicity stories and illustrations is being thrown into Arkansas newspaper offices by one Phillip G. Back, a professional advertising man with offices at 332 Arkansas Gazette Bldg., Little Rock, operating for the account of The United Committee for Better Schools," that publicity money is exceedingly scarce when you go about the business of drafting a constitutional amendment to compel property to pay its just share of the public school program — but apparently you can get all kinds financial support when it comes to pushing taxes on everything else but property.

Especially is it easy to get the Arkansas Gazette's support when you're not talking about property taxes. For the Gazette lives in Little Rock, which is in Pulaski County — and Pulaski County measured by uniform appraisal methods has the second lowest assessing rate in Arkansas, 7.47%, only half the state-wide average of 13.69%. My authority for this statement is the official report of the Legislative Audit Committee which was released November 18, 1954, and which I published in The Star November 22, 1954.

Taxes are levied directly in either of two ways: (1) Against property, and (2) against commodities or services which the common people, whether they are property owners or not, have to buy in order to exist. You have before you factual evidence that the ancient and rich Arkansas Gazette is deliberately leading a movement to head off the improvement of property axes -- with the obvious purpose of laying the whip on the unpropertied poor with new and higher sales and

Twenty years ago I testified before a legislative committee in behalf of the Hall 2% state sales tax, and it was enacted in March 1935. It was a tax on the bread and milk and clothing that families have to buy, whether they own property or not. My justification was that property during the depression was worthless and could pay no tax, and we had no alternative with which to keep the

But it was a gentlemen's understanding that for this concession we would in time re-assess property's position and levy against it a fair proportion of the cost of government. The agreement was broken, but at least this writer has kept faith with it; he gave two weeks of his own time and at his own expense to help draft Amendment 43 two years ago --- but the rich Pulaski crowd sidestepped it in silence and set up the present conspiracy to rob mere wage-earners in the holy name of the schools.

This is the biggest fraud in the history of Arkansas. Last Thursday, January 20, in this same column, I reviewed the 20-year-history of sales tax operation and showed you that while the public schools were getting $29,100,000 out of the Stabilization Fund in fiscal 1953-54 the legislature diverted to the county and city governments $4,980,000 — one-sixth of all that the schools got. And the legislature put additional tax on tobacco, formerly reserved for school purposes, to give the University Medical Center in Little Rock $3,420,000 - oneeighth of all that the schools received, not to mention the fact that the higher tax curtailed the whole yield

So taxation isn't efficient at the local level . . . What is it at the state level but an initial ballyhoo for the public schools and then a silent diversion to every other purpose but the schools?

And how will we ever make taxation efficient at the Tocal level and recover authority over local government while the counties and cities can go off to Little Rock and picking 5 willian a year without either the knowledge or consent of the local electorate?

And to this fraud which the Arkansas Gazette is trying to perpetrate on the unpropertied common people the name of the schools our answer is "No!"

There's no will for local self-government when there's
